

24th Annual Irish Conference of Medievalists
at NUI, Galway
25–27 June 2010
Call for Papers

Since its establishment in 1987, the Irish Conference of Medievalists has always offered an eclectic selection of papers, aiming not only at representing the current state of Medieval Studies in Ireland and abroad, but also at informing the audience of the latest achievements and the future directions of this scholarly area. The twenty-fourth ICM, which will be held in the National University of Ireland, Galway, 25–27 June 2010, will continue this approach and invites proposals for papers in medieval archaeology, art, history, linguistics, literature and philology.

The conference will also host plenary sessions that will provide our audience with an opportunity to benefit from the work of some of the most eminent scholars in the field. Prof. Thomas Charles-Edwards (Professor of Celtic in Jesus College, Oxford) will open the conference. Two other plenary sessions will focus on specific themes of wide interest in the area of Medieval Studies: one will deal with the famous Old Irish text known as Amrae Coluimb Chille, while the other will concern research undertaken by the Dublin-based Discovery Programme.

Proposals should include a title and short abstract (200 words), as well as the speaker's name, postal and e-mail addresses. The deadline for the submission is 28 February 2010. Please send proposals to:

Dr Jacopo Bisagni
Department of Classics
National University of Ireland, Galway
Galway IRELAND

or by e-mail to:

jacopo.bisagni@nuigalway.ie

Registration fee: full €40; students €25 (includes all tea breaks and Saturday lunch).
Conference dinner (Saturday evening): €50.

Further information on programme, travel and accommodation is available on our website:
www.irishmedievalists.com